> to make attractive displays on the benches in the local markets tomorrow morning. Reports of frosts having caused wholesale damage to crops do not seem to bother the local dealers, nor has the frost made itself felt so far as local products are concerned. It was only a few days ago that published reports had the Norfolk strawberry crop killed, but local dealers are offering berries from that section to their patrons. The berries are in splendid condition and are selling as cheap as 10 cents a box. Better berries are bringing as much as 18 cents. While the berries are a trifle later this year than usual, their quality is just as good and they are in good demand. Today there were a few berries in market that were grown in this section, but they were not of excellent quality.

Pinto peaches from Florida are to be had at 20 cents a quart. They are of inferior quality, however, dealers say, and the demand for them is not great. The peaches are picked green, and it is declared that by the time they ripen there is not much of the peach flavor to them. Pine. that by the time they ripen there is not much of the peach flavor to them. Pine-apples are getting more plentiful and cheaper, good fruit selling at from 15 to 30 cents. Because of the reported prospective scarcity of late fruits, dealers say, berries will be in greater demand than usual, as they will be wanted for preserving and making felly. Oranges are still fairly and making jelly. Oranges are still fairly plentiful, but they are not considered cheap. The prices charged for them range from 30 to 60 cents a dozen.

Demand for Oranges.

It is believed the late berry season made much greater demand for oranges and caused higher prices to prevail so early in the season. Grape fruit is selling at from 10 to 25 cents each, and apples are 25 cents a quarter peck. Bananas and lemons are plentiful, the former selling at from 5 to 20 cents a dozen and the latter at from 5 to 25 cents.

Vegetables of all kinds are to be found on the benches in the local markets, the prices being governed largely by the condition of the produce. Last Sunday's hailstorm played havoc with lettuce in this section, and made the growing vegetables ragged and almost unfit for market. Some southern lettuce is being received how. ragged and almost unfit for market. Some southern lettuce is being received, however, and dealers will experience but little trouble filling the demand. Spring spinach is getting plentiful, and it is considered cheap at 10 cents a quarter peck. Some of the growing spinach was damaged by the hall last Sunday, but not to a great extent. Spring peas are plentiful at 15 cents a quarter peck, the supply being greater than the demand. String beans are not quite so plentiful, and are sellinf for $1$ a peck. Tomatoes are plentiful, and are to be had at matoes are plentiful, and are to be had at from 10 to 20 cents a pound. Asparagus is also plentiful. Egg plants are quoted at from 5 to 20 cents each, and cucumbers are selling at from 5 to 10 cents.

Fish- Crabs and Clams. Marine products are plentiful, there being plenty fish, crabs and clams in market to supply all demands, although no especially fine fish are being caught in the Potomac at this time, with the exception of a few shad and sturgeon. The season for shad and herring is drawing to a close, the law forbidding the sale of the fish after June 10. Some extra fine soft crabs have been received by local dealers from North Carolina, and they are finding ready sale at $1 a dozen. The smaller crabs from the Chesapeake are to be had as cheap as 40 cents. Crab meat is plentiful and in demand, and hard crabs are also being received from many points about the Chesapeake bay and telephoratics. many points about the Chesapeake bay and tributaries. Hard crabs are in great demand because of the large number of restaurants serving them. Frogs are selling at 50 and 60 cents a pound. Many fine snapping turtles have been caught in the Potomac this week, and dealers made such threating displays of them that they found attractive displays of them that they found ready sale at 12½ cents a pound.

Poultry Prices.

Everything in the poultry market is high. nothing being quoted at less than 20 cents pound. Roasting chickens, fowls, ducks prices are correspondingly high. Frozen stock is selling as high as 25 and 30 cents a pound, the fresh-killed ones bringselling at 35 cents a pound, and good butter is to be had for 30 cents. Country butter is selling as low as 20 cents. Dealers complain that no grass or clover butter has yet been received from the west, the trouble being caused by the late spring in that section. Eggs are retailing at 20 cents, and they are plentiful. and they are plentiful.

No material change has been experienced in the meat market recently. It is said all meats are high and that prospects of lower prices prevailing in the near future are not

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKETS TO SAVE KOREAN FORESTS

DEALERS ABLE TO MAKE ATTRAC. JAPAN WILL FOLLOW METHODS

OF THIS COUNTRY.

Forwarded by Ambassador L. E. Wright. Luke E. Wright, United States ambassa-Dealers in fruits and produce will be able dor to Japan, has forwarded to the State Department details of the co-operative agreement between the Japanese and Korean governments, outlining a plan for the use of the forests in the Yalu and Tumen > veloping the national forests of this country under the administration of the forest The decision of the Japanese government to apply methods of forestry to the use of the forests of Korea is given especial attention, because it is said that the matter of a large timber concession by Russia to a corporation was one of the ulterior causes of the declaration of war between the two countries. Before Korea came under the rule of Japan its timber resources were being rapidly depleted by wasteful lumbering, and the country bade fair to become as badly deforested in the course of time as China and Turkey.

Japan's plan for the management of the timber lands of Korea is to establish in the next five or six years nine model forests in the neighborhood of the cities of Seoul, Pingyang and Taiku. The capital for this enterprise is about $600,000, one-half of which is to be furnished by the Korean government. Private enterprise for the development of forest areas will be encour-aged, and a Korean school of Agriculture and forestry, to furnish the necessary trained experts for the management of these national forests, has already been

The practice of forestry is a new thing The practice of forestry is a new thing in Korea, and it is said that its introduction will bring many benefits to its people. The country has excellent forests, but the excessive lumbering operations of the last few years, if carried on, would soon lay bare vast areas of land.

Study of Forestry in Japan. The forests of Japan have been managed by the imperial government for many years. The national forests of that country cover an area of about 30,000,000 acres, or slightly more than one-half of the total forested area. The management of the forests by the Japanese government has proved very successful. In 1901 the total receipts were $1,085,000, and the net income $570,000. In the decade ending 1901 Japan's lumber exports amounted to $25,000,000. The first school of forestry in Japan was established in 1885, fifteen years prior to the time a school of forestry was established in this country. The island nation now has sixty-two institutions in which the science and practice of forestry is taught. The government forests are under the supervision of a bureau of forestry, which is a part of the department of agriculture, similar to plan of organization in this country.

CHICAGO, May 24.-John W. Gates declares that he is as intrinsically wealthy today as he was in the heydey of promotion year, 1901, when he was reputed to be worth $50,000,000. The financier, promoter and stock market operator arrived from New York yesterday morning, and prior to his departure for Texas talked with his customary pictur-for me in nine months.

"I flatter myself that I can see a low turn. The report that I transferred my holdings of Tennessee coal and iron to the Hanover National Bank of New York is a fake, put out by the bear crowd in Wall street. I bought the control from the Hanover, and, though the price is 135 today, I would not seel my three for 250.

"I severed my connection with Charles
G. Gates & Co. simply because I wanted to devote all my time to my varied interests. I am on my way to Texas to look after my properties own there. From there I shall go to Europe for a rest. By the time I get back I think you'll find the financial markets in much better condition. The bears have sold themselves blind and have put themselves into a pocket.
